Where Should We Focus Our Efforts?

Key Questions to ask

01

Which products drive the most profit vs. just revenue?

03

Is our sales team aligned with targets?

02

Are all regions performing equally?

Without clear insights, we're making decisions in the dark

The Challenge: Making Sense of $77.5M in Sales

$77.5M Total
Revenue

204,000+ UNITS
SOLD

6 COUNTRIES,
10 REGIONS

18 Salespeople,
701 Resellers

Three years of data (2017-2020) • 250 Products • 4 Categories

Bikes Dominate, But Margins Tell a Different Story

Key Insight

- Bikes: $64M revenue (82.6% of total)
- Accessories have 36% profit margin
- Mountain-200 alone: $2.9M revenue

High revenue $\neq$ High profitability

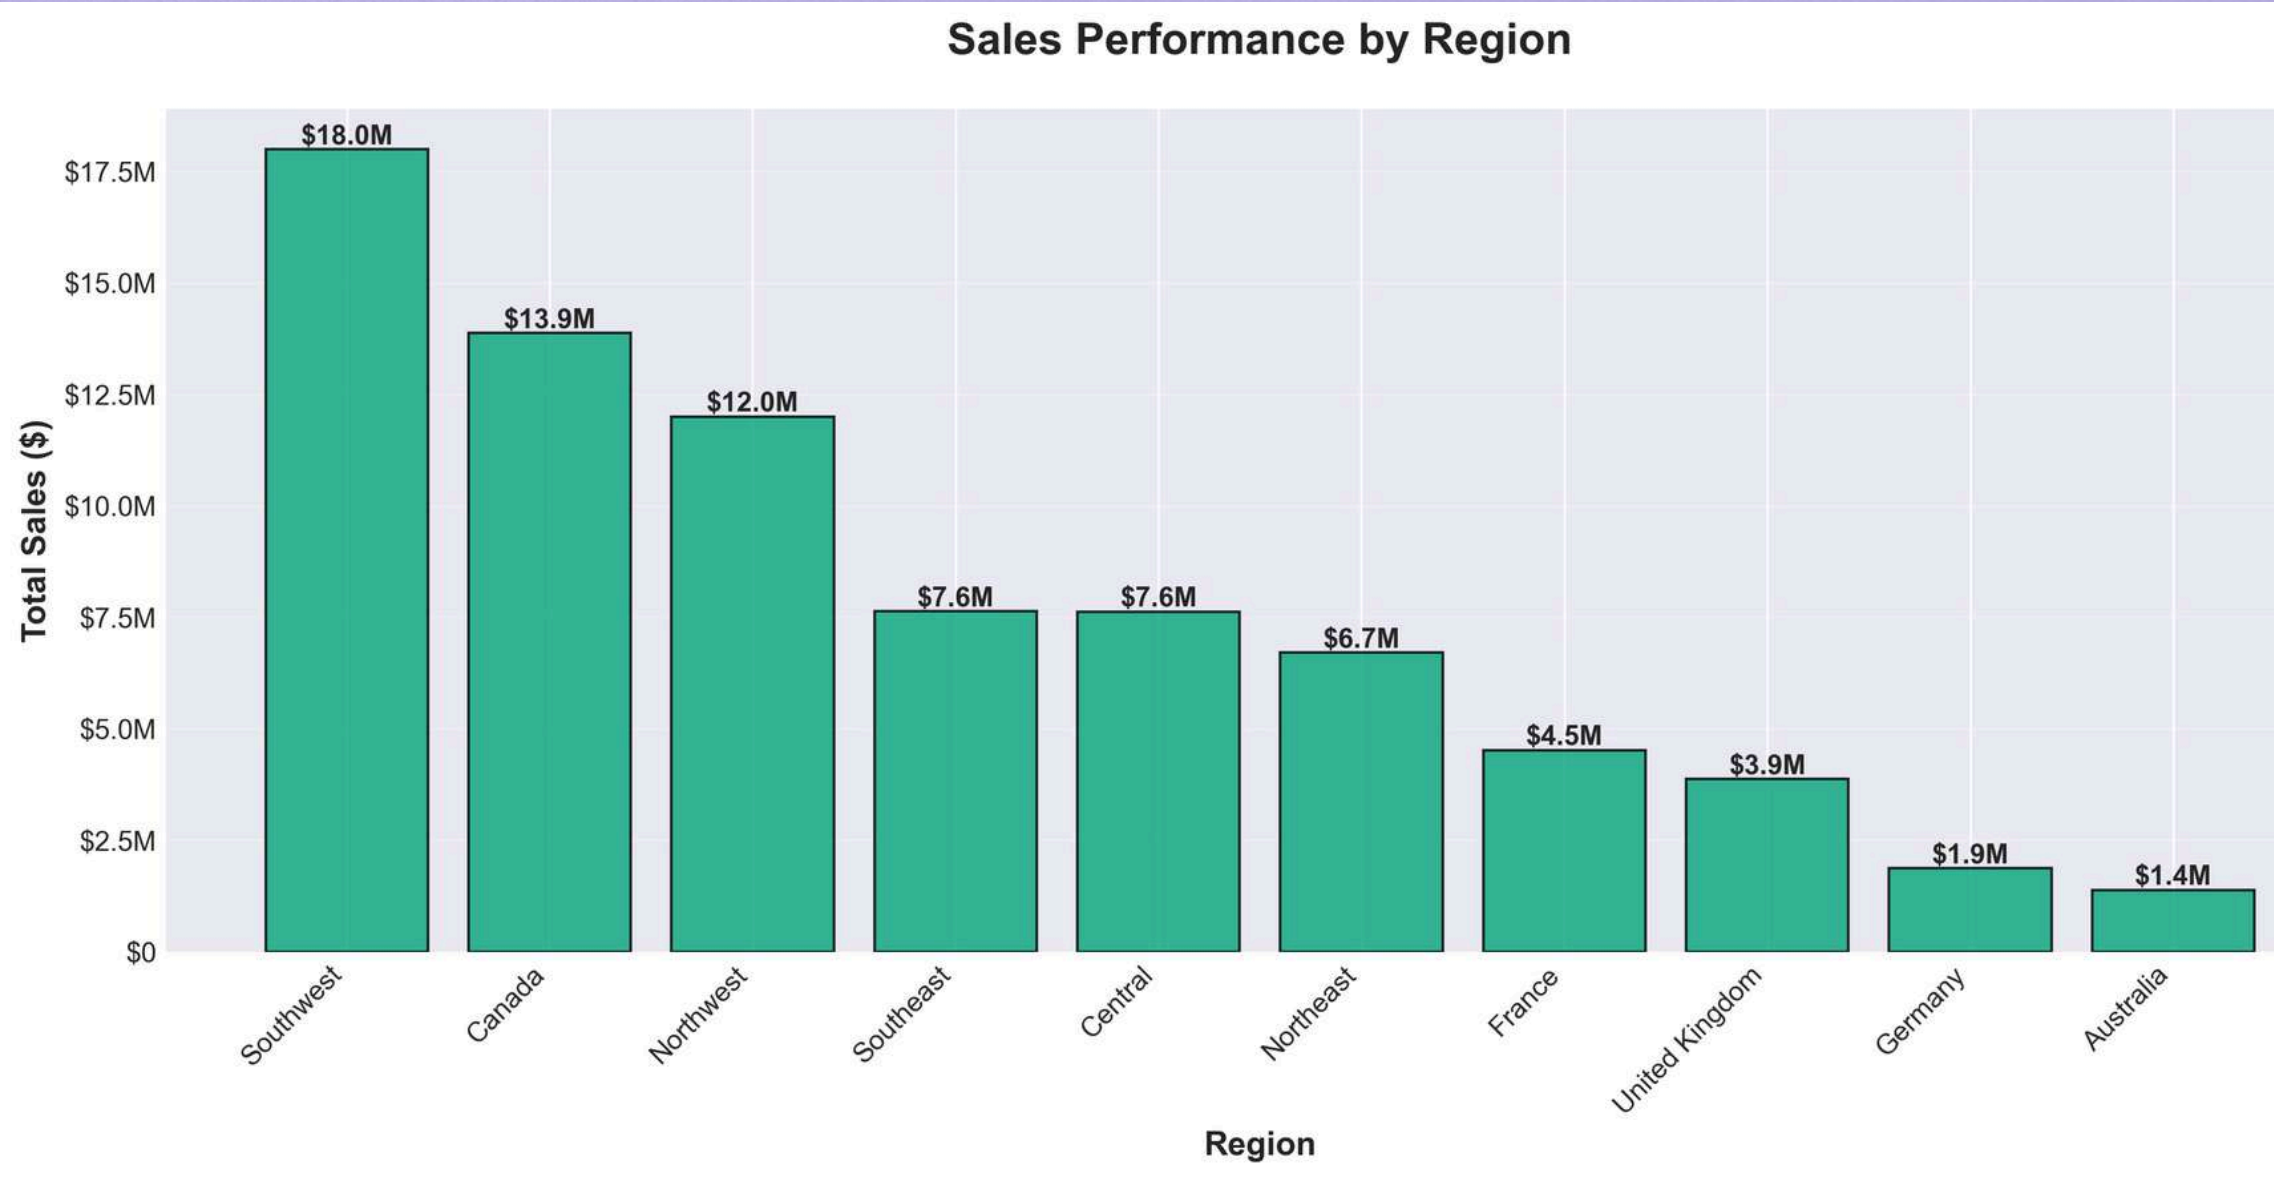

Southwest Leads, But Gaps Are Significant

Key Insight

- Southwest: $18M (23.2%)
- Canada: $13.9M (17.9%)
- Australia: $1.4M (1.8%)

13x gap between top and bottom regions

Opportunity: Replicate Southwest success in underperforming regions

Sales Team: Stars and Struggles

Rank	Salesperson	Revenue	Orders	Avg Order Value
1	Linda Mitchell	$10.2M	400	$1,485
2	Jillian Carson	$9.8M	459	$1,296
3	Michael Blythe	$9.0M	431	$1,329
10	Garrett Vargas	$3.5M	223	$1,111

Performance
Gap

Linda Mitchell ($10.2M) vs. lowest performer (~$3M) = $7M+ revenue difference
This gap is not acceptable and represents lost revenue.

What Top
Performers Do
Differently

Hypothesis

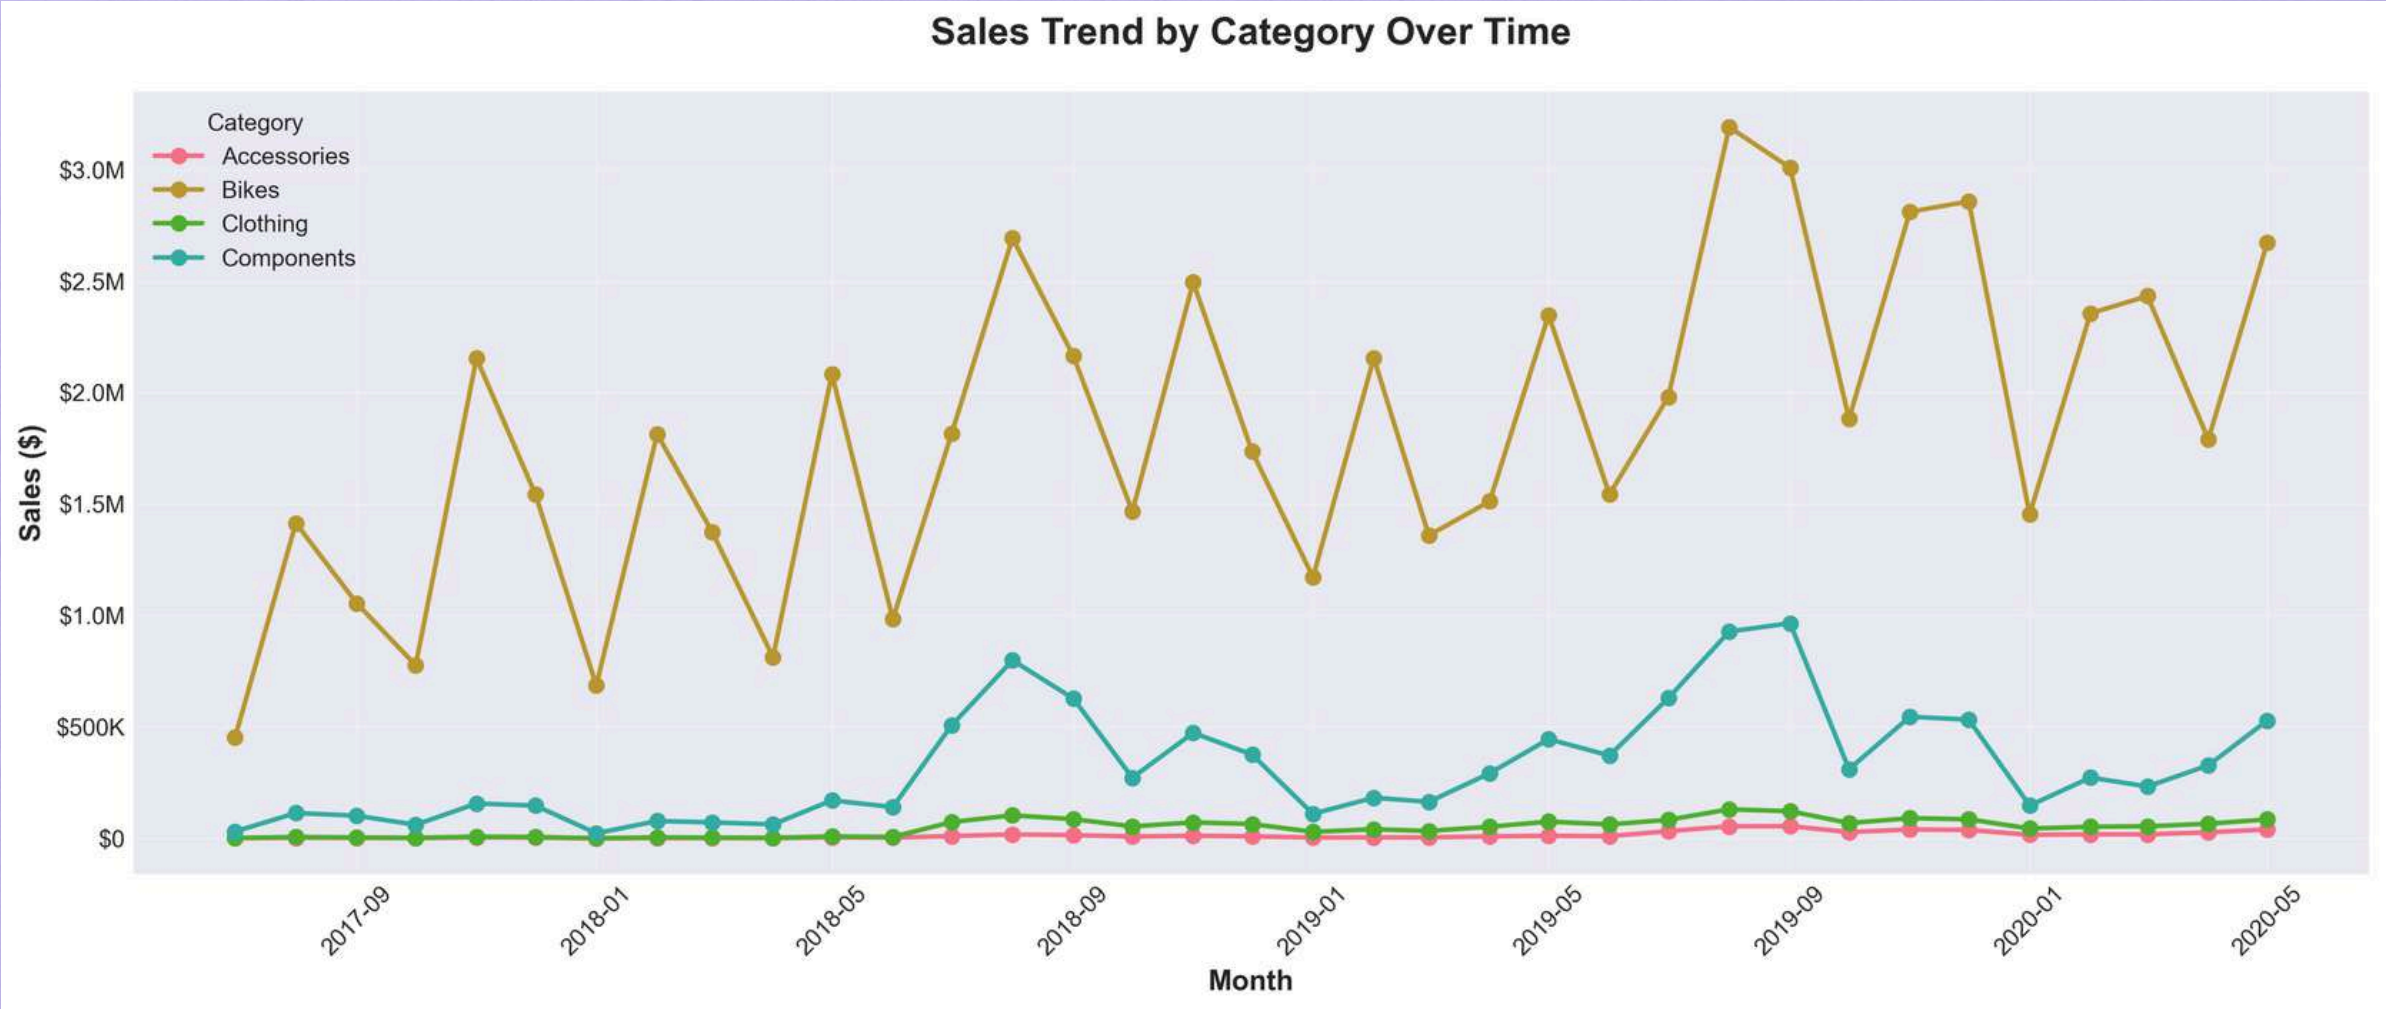

- Higher order volume: More reseller relationships or better pipeline managemen
- Higher AOV : Upselling accessories or larger product bundles
- Better territory : Assigned to high-density markets (e.g., Southwest)

Action

- Shadow top 3 reps for 2 weeks
- Document sales process differences
- Create training program for bottom 50%
- Reassess territory assignments
